POSTCARD - BACK

In 2009, AFLA Ltd was appointed by Wiltshire County Council to design the landscape for the new Lydiard Millicent Primary School, designed by the Bush Consultancy. Our brief for the landscape developed out of consultation with the school and detailed plans were passed by the local planning authority in 2009.

Construction of the new school started in 2010 and we carried out further design work with the school, including wildlife habitats, fire circle and an eey-ore shelter. The new school opened in September 2011 with the landscape completed in the autumn.

An accessible path runs around the school grounds, linking activity and habitat areas. Native planting will encourage wildlife right up to the school building and the head teacher intends to get the children out into the grounds as much as possible.
